The Man who Created Sherlock Holmes:

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle

Sherlock Holmes and Dr John Watson are two of the most famous and best loved characters in all of literature. But Arthur Conan Doyle, their creator, was just as fascinating<sup>1</sup> as his creations. Arthur Conan Doyle was born on 22 May 1859 in Edinburgh, Scotland. His father was a timid and impractical<sup>2</sup> civil servant and when Arthur was still a young man his father had to go to live in a mental hospital because he was an alcoholic and epileptic.<sup>3</sup>

His mother, on the other hand, was a strong, proud woman who came from a distinguished<sup>1</sup> military family. She filled Arthur with ideas of honour and chivalry<sup>2</sup> – two ideas that are present in all his writings and actions.

In 1876 Arthur began his medical studies at Edinburgh University. Because he had very little money, Arthur worked for a doctor called Joseph Bell. Joseph Bell amazed<sup>3</sup> his students because he could guess the jobs and lifestyle of his patients by simply observing them carefully. Joseph Bell was Arthur's principal<sup>4</sup> model for Sherlock Holmes.

In 1880 Arthur accepted a job as ship's doctor on an arctic whaler.<sup>5</sup> During the seven-month voyage of this ship Arthur had many exciting adventures: he saw the killing of Greenland seals<sup>6</sup> and whales and he himself almost drowned in icy arctic waters.

Very few patients came, so Arthur had time to write. One of the books he wrote was a novel called A Study in Scarlet. This was the first Sherlock Holmes story.

To make money, Arthur sent a short story about Holmes to a popular monthly magazine called the Strand. Holmes soon became a big success. The Strand immediately asked Arthur for more stories about Sherlock Holmes, but from the beginning he had a strange relationship with his famous creation:<sup>2</sup> he did not think his stories about Sherlock Holmes were serious and artistic enough. He wanted to write serious historic novels. So, from the beginning, Arthur planned the death of Sherlock Holmes. When Arthur told his mother about his plans to eliminate<sup>3</sup> Sherlock

The reaction of readers was immediate.<sup>1</sup> The Strand lost 20,000 readers, and people wrote thousands of letters to Doyle begging<sup>2</sup> him to bring Holmes back to life. Many people even insulted<sup>3</sup> him. One woman wrote these eloquent<sup>4</sup> words to Arthur: 'You Brute.' Finally, in 1901 Arthur wrote a serialised Sherlock Holmes novel<sup>5</sup> called The Hound of the Baskervilles; the Strand's circulation<sup>6</sup> increased by thirty thousand copies. From then on Holmes appeared in the Strand until 1927, just three years before Arthur's death.

But Arthur's life was not just Sherlock Holmes. He was very active in public affairs. Arthur spoke in favour of a Channel

Arthur also became an important advocate<sup>5</sup> of spiritualism. Spiritualism is the belief that it is possible to communicate with the spirits of the dead. Arthur also believed in the existence of fairies, and he said that some photographs of a little girl with fairies were real. He even wrote a book in 1922 called The Coming of the Fairies. Of course, Arthur, the creator of the most logical man in the world, Sherlock Holmes, was greatly ridiculed<sup>6</sup> for these beliefs, but Arthur did not seem to care. As always, he stuck to<sup>7</sup> his beliefs with honour and with pleasant good humour.

INTERNET PROJECT

Sherlock Holmes is one of the world's most famous detectives. People all over the world go to London to visit his museum at 221b Baker Street. We can visit it too without having to go to London! You can find it on the Internet and even have a virtual tour of Sherlock Holmes' study.

Write a short report about your visit to the museum including the following things:

- ▶ How the building became a museum.
- ▶ Describe Holmes' study: the furniture, style, colours and objects.
- ▶ What is on the second and third floors.

The original Sherlock Holmes

- 2 Arthur Conan Doyle was a doctor. Arthur himself described Sherlock Holmes as 'a scientific detective'. Sherlock Holmes' methods are very similar to the methods of a doctor. His 'detecting' work is like the 'diagnosing'<sup>1</sup> work of a doctor. The 'clues' of the crime are like the 'symptoms'<sup>2</sup> of a disease. In fact, Arthur's model for Sherlock Holmes was a doctor called Joseph Bell.

Below is an example of a conversation between Dr Joseph Bell – the original Sherlock Holmes – and one of his patients.

- a. Dr Bell – Well, my man you've served in the army.
Patient – Aye, sir. ('Aye' means 'Yes' in Scotland and various parts of northern England.)
- b. Dr Bell – And you have left the army recently?
Patient – Yes, sir.
- c. Dr Bell – And you belonged to a Highland regiment?
(A Scottish regiment – 'the Highlands' are the mountainous region of northern and western Scotland.)
Patient – Aye, sir.
- d. Dr Bell – And you were an officer?
Patient – Aye, sir.
- e. Dr Bell – And you were stationed<sup>3</sup> at Barbados? (The easternmost island of the West Indies.)
Patient – Aye, sir.

---

1. diagnosing : 诊断 (疾病)。

2. symptoms : 症状。

3. stationed : 驻扎。

Now match the explanations given by Bell himself as to how he was able to guess so many things about this man by simply observing him closely.

1. ☒ d He had an air of authority.
2. ☐ His disease was elephantiasis, a disease which occurs only in tropical countries, and which is also called 'Barbados Leg'.
3. ☐ The man was very respectful, but he did not remove his hat. In the army men do not remove their hat as a sign of respect; they salute.
4. ☐ He had a Scottish accent.<sup>1</sup>
5. ☐ The man had not been a civilian<sup>2</sup> long enough to have the habit of removing his hat as a sign of respect.

1. accent : 口音。

2. civilian : 文职人员。

Before you read

1 The characters of the first part of the story present themselves below. Match their presentations with the picture of each one.

- a. ☐ My name is Sherlock Holmes. I am a scientific detective. I solve crimes by logical reasoning and with the help of scientific instruments like forceps<sup>1</sup> and magnifying glass.<sup>2</sup> When I am at home I like to relax and be comfortable.
At home I often wear my purple dressing-gown<sup>3</sup> and smoke a pipe.
- b. ☐ My name is Dr John Watson. I am a doctor. My wife takes good care of me, and always brushes my hat. I am a good observer,<sup>4</sup> but, as my friend Holmes says, I do not reason<sup>5</sup> with what I see.
- c. ☐ My name is Peterson. I am a commissioner.<sup>6</sup> For my job I wear a grand uniform that looks like a military uniform. I work at a hotel where I open the door for clients and take messages. I found the hat and the goose, and took them to my friend Sherlock Holmes.
- d. ☐ My name is Henry Baker. This is not a good time for me. I often drink, and my wife doesn't love me anymore. You can see this because my clothes are always dirty and my hat is never brushed. I have lost my hat and my Christmas goose.

PART I

 I visited my friend Sherlock Holmes on the second morning of Christmas. When I arrived he was sitting in front of the fire, wearing his purple dressing-gown. Next to the sofa was a wooden chair, and on the chair was a dirty old hat. A magnifying glass and a forceps were on the chair, so the hat was probably part of one of Holmes' investigations.<sup>1</sup>

'You are busy,' I said. 'Perhaps I interrupt you.'

'Not at all,' he replied, and indicated<sup>2</sup> the hat. 'The problem is very simple, but it is still interesting and maybe even instructive.'<sup>3</sup>

1. investigations : 调查。
2. indicated : 指明。
3. instructive : 有启发的。

I sat down in an armchair and warmed my hands in front of the fire because it was very cold outside.

'I imagine,' I said, 'that this hat is connected with a terrible crime.'

'No, no. No crime,' said Sherlock Holmes, laughing. 'It is only one of those strange things that happens when four million human beings live within the small area of a city. With so many people, every imaginable<sup>1</sup> combination<sup>2</sup> of events is possible, and sometimes you can find a problem that is striking<sup>3</sup> and strange but not criminal.'

'Do you know Peterson, the commissionaire?'

'Yes.'

'This trophy<sup>4</sup> belongs to him.'

'It is his hat?'

'No, no. He found it. Its owner<sup>1</sup> is unknown. Look at it carefully, and not as a dirty old hat, but as an intellectual<sup>2</sup> problem. It arrived here on Christmas morning together with a good fat goose.<sup>3</sup> That goose is probably cooking at Peterson's house at this very moment.

'These are the facts. About four o'clock on Christmas morning Peterson was returning from a party along Tottenham Court Road. In front of him he saw a tall man carrying a white goose. Then he saw some men attack the tall man. One of the attackers knocked his hat off,<sup>4</sup> so the man lifted his walking stick<sup>5</sup> to defend himself. But when he lifted the stick he broke a shop window by mistake.

help the man, but when the man saw Peterson with his commissionaire uniform, he thought he was a policeman, and he ran away and so did the attackers. Peterson was there all alone with the hat and the goose.'

'Of course, Peterson then returned the goose to its owner,' I said.

'No,' replied Holmes, 'that is the problem. It is true that "For Mrs Henry Baker" was written on a small card attached<sup>1</sup> to the leg of the goose, and that the initials<sup>2</sup> "H.B." are written on the lining<sup>3</sup> of the hat. But there are thousands of Bakers and hundreds of Henry Bakers in London.'

'What, then, did Peterson do?'

'He brought both the goose and the hat to me on Christmas morning, because he knows that I am interested in even the smallest problems. I kept the goose until this morning and then I gave it to Peterson to cook for dinner.'

'Did the man who lost the goose put a notice in the newspaper?'

'No.'

'Then how can you discover who he is?' I asked.

1. attached : 附着在。

2. initials : 姓名的首字母。

3. lining : (帽、衣等的) 衬里。

SHERLOCK HOLMES INVESTIGATES

‘From his hat,’ replied Holmes.

‘Here is my magnifying glass,’ replied Holmes. ‘You know my methods. Look at the hat and see what you can discover about the identity of the man.’

I picked up the hat and looked at it carefully. It was a very ordinary round black hat. It was very worn<sup>2</sup> and inside I could see the initials ‘H.B.’. There was a hole in the brim<sup>3</sup> for the hat-securer,<sup>4</sup> but the elastic<sup>5</sup> was missing. It was very dusty<sup>6</sup> and spotted<sup>7</sup> in several places, but the owner had tried to cover these spots with black ink.

‘I can see nothing,’ I said, and gave the hat to Holmes.

‘On the contrary, Watson, you can see everything, but you do not reason with what you see.’

1. You are joking : 你是说着玩的。

2. worn : 磨损的。

3. brim :

4. hat-securer : 使帽子固定在头上的带子。

5. elastic : 松紧带。

6. dusty : 布满灰尘的。

7. spotted : 布满污渍的。

THE BLUE CARBUNCLE

‘Then please tell me what you can deduce<sup>1</sup> from this hat,’ I said.

‘Well,’ said Holmes as he looked at the hat carefully, ‘I can see that the man was highly intellectual,<sup>2</sup> and that three years ago he had enough money, but recently he has had difficulties with money. He had foresight<sup>3</sup> in the past, but much less now, which means he has some problem, probably drink.<sup>4</sup> This is probably the reason why his wife has stopped loving him.’

‘My dear Holmes!’

‘He has, however, kept some self-respect,’ continued Holmes. ‘He stays at home and goes out very little. He is totally out of training,<sup>5</sup> is middle-aged, has grey hair, which has been recently cut, and he uses lime-cream.<sup>6</sup> These are the main facts. Also, I do not think he has gas lighting in his house.’

‘You are certainly joking, Holmes.’

1. deduce : 推理。
2. intellectual : (此处指) 善于思考的。
3. foresight : 先见之明。
4. drink : (此处指) 酗酒。
5. out of training : 缺乏锻炼的。
6. lime-cream : 一种发乳。

SHERLOCK HOLMES INVESTIGATES

‘Not at all. Don’t you understand how I inferred<sup>1</sup> these things?’

‘I am certain that I am very stupid,’ I replied, ‘but I can’t follow your reasoning. For example, how did you deduce that this man was an intellectual?’

To answer me Holmes put the hat on his head. The hat was too big for him and covered his eyes.

‘It’s a question of volume,’<sup>2</sup> said Holmes. ‘If a man has such a big brain, he must have something in it.’

‘How do you know he has less money now than in the past?’

‘This kind of hat first came out three years ago. It is a hat of the very best quality. If this man had enough money to buy such an expensive hat three years ago, but he has not bought another hat since then, then it is clear that he has much less money now.’

‘Well, that is clear enough, certainly. But how about the foresight?’

Sherlock Holmes laughed. ‘Here is the foresight,’ he said, pointing at the hat-securer. ‘Hat-securers are never sold with hats. This means that he ordered it, which is a certain sign of foresight. But since he has not replaced<sup>3</sup> the broken elastic,

1. inferred : 推断。

2. volume : 容积。

3. replaced : 替换。

THE BLUE CARBUNCLE

this means that he has less foresight than before. But he has tried to hide some of the spots on his hat with ink which means he has not completely lost his self-respect.'

'Your reasoning is certainly very good,' I said.

'That he is middle-aged, that his hair is grey, that his hair has been recently cut and that he uses lime-cream can all be seen by looking closely at the inside of the hat. With the magnifying glass you can see the partially <sup>1</sup> grey hairs cut by a barber's scissors. They stick to the hat and there is the distinct odour of lime-cream. Also, you will observe that the dust on the hat is the soft, brown dust you find in houses, not the hard, grey dust you find in the streets. This means that the hat is kept inside the house most of the time, and that he doesn't go out very often. Also you can see the sweat <sup>2</sup> stain <sup>3</sup> on the inside of the hat, which means he perspired <sup>4</sup> a lot. A man who perspires so much can't be in the best of training.'

'But his wife – you said that she stopped loving him.'

'This hat has not been brushed for weeks. When a man's wife lets him go out in such bad condition it means that she doesn't love him anymore.'

1. partially : 部分。

2. sweat : 汗水。

3. stain : 污渍。

4. perspired : 出汗。

SHERLOCK HOLMES INVESTIGATES

‘But he could be a bachelor,’<sup>1</sup> I said.

‘No, he was bringing the goose to make peace<sup>2</sup> with his wife. Do you remember the card on its leg?’

‘You have an answer for everything. But how did you deduce that he doesn’t have gas lighting in his house?’

‘Well, if you saw one or two wax<sup>3</sup> stains on a hat, it could be by chance.<sup>4</sup> But I can see at least five on this hat, which means that this man must use candles very frequently.’

‘Well, it is very ingenious,’<sup>5</sup> I said laughing, ‘but since a crime has not been committed,<sup>6</sup> all this seems to be a waste of time.’

1. bachelor : 单身汉。
2. make peace : 和解。
3. wax : 蜡。
4. by chance : 意外地。
5. ingenious : 足智多谋的。
6. committed : 做。

A dirty hat

- 2 Match the pictures of the clues with the written descriptions below. Then match the clues with Sherlock Holmes' deductions.

THE CLUES

1. There is dust on his hat, and it is the kind of dust you find in houses, not on the street.
2. There are some hairs sticking to the hat and there is the distinct odour of lime-cream.
3. There are at least five wax stains on his hat.
4. His hat is not brushed.
5. The hat is big.
6. He bought a hat-securer, but when it broke he did not replace it.
7. There are pieces of cut hair stuck to the inside of the hat.
8. There was the label on the leg of the goose which says 'For Mrs Henry Baker' and there were the initials 'H.B.' written on the inside of the hat.
9. His hair is greyish in colour.
10. This hat came out three years ago, and it is quite worn.
11. He has tried to cover up the stains with ink.
12. There are sweat stains on the hat.

THE DEDUCTIONS

- a. He is intellectual.
- b. He had enough money in the past, but doesn't now.
- c. He had foresight, but he has less now.
- d. He has not completely lost his self-respect.
- e. He is middle-aged.
- f. He has recently had his hair cut.
- g. He uses lime-cream.
- h. He doesn't go out very often.
- i. He is not in the best of training.
- j. His wife has stopped loving him.
- k. He is married.
- l. He does not have gas lighting in his house.

Three years ago

A partial chain of events

3 a. As you will see, the chain of events of this story is very striking indeed. Below are the facts that we have learned so far. Number them in the right order.

- a. ☐ The attackers run away.
- b. ☐ Peterson is alone with the hat and the goose.
- c. ☐ 1 Peterson is walking home from a party on Christmas morning.
- d. ☐ He decides to ask his friend Sherlock Holmes for help in finding the man who lost the hat and the goose.
- e. ☐ During the fight one of the attackers knocks off the man's hat.
- f. ☐ The attackers and the man who is being attacked see that Peterson is wearing a uniform and they think he is a policeman.
- g. ☐ Unfortunately, he drops the goose.
- h. ☐ He sees some men attacking another man with a goose.
- i. ☐ He wants to return the hat and the goose to the man but he doesn't know how to find him.
- j. ☐ The man runs away too.

b. Now rewrite the sentences as a paragraph, putting them in the past and using the connecting words below to put sentences 1 and 2, 4 and 5, 6 and 7, and 9 and 10 together.

The Baker Street irregulars

- 4 Find the Past Simple of the irregular verbs below in the verb square. All of them appear in the story.

come   put   lie   run   see   keep give   lose   say   have/has

Now complete the following sentences with one of these verbs, creating either an affirmative (I went) or a negative sentence (I didn't go).

These sentences should be true according to the context of the story.

Example: Holmes didn't run to help the man. Peterson ran to help the man.

- Holmes ..... that only important crimes are interesting.
- Henry Baker ..... a goose and a hat.
- Watson ..... many things when he looked at the hat.
- Holmes ..... the goose to Peterson.
- Mr Henry Baker ..... a lot of money.
- Holmes ..... the hat, but he ..... the goose.

5 Topic – Celebrations

Find a picture about the celebration of Christmas, if possible from your country. Think about these questions:

- How is Christmas being celebrated in the picture?
- What do people usually eat and drink at this celebration in your country?
- Which other countries celebrate Christmas?

herlock Holmes had opened his mouth to reply, when the door opened and Peterson, the commissioner rushed in.<sup>1</sup> He looked incredibly<sup>2</sup> shocked.

‘The goose, Mr Holmes! The goose, sir!’ he cried.

‘What? Has it returned to life and flown out of your kitchen window?’ said Holmes.

‘Look here, sir! Look what my wife found in its stomach!’ He showed us a shiny blue stone in his hand.

Hotel Cosmopolitan Jewel Robbery

John Horner, 26-year-old plumber, has been arrested for stealing the famous blue carbuncle from the Countess of Morcar.

James Ryder, an attendant at the hotel, said that he had sent Horner to the Countess’ room on the day of the robbery to repair a bar of the grate. <sup>3</sup> Ryder said that he stayed with Horner for a few minutes, but then he had to leave. When Ryder returned he saw that somebody had forced <sup>4</sup> open the Countess’ bureau. <sup>5</sup> Ryder called the police and the police arrested Horner that same evening. Catherine Cusack, the Countess’ maid said that she heard Ryder call for help. She ran into the room and saw the same things that Ryder described to the police. In addition, the police discovered that Horner had already been charged with <sup>6</sup> robbery in the past, but Horner says that in this case he is innocent. His trial <sup>7</sup> will be soon.

THE BLUE CARBUNCLE

‘Hum! So much for <sup>1</sup> the police report,’ said Holmes throwing the paper on a chair. ‘You see, Watson, our little deductions <sup>2</sup> about the hat have become much more important and less innocent. Here is the stone: the stone came from the goose, and the goose came from Mr Henry Baker, the gentleman with the bad hat which we examined so carefully. Now we must discover Mr Baker’s part in this mystery. To find him, the simplest thing is to put an advertisement <sup>3</sup> in the evening newspaper.’

‘What will you say?’
I asked.

‘Well,’ said Holmes, “Found at the corner of Goodge Street a goose and a black hat. Mr Henry Baker can have them if he comes to 221b Baker Street at 6:30 this evening.”

Then Holmes sent Peterson to buy another goose to give to Baker if he came, and to put the advertisement in all the newspapers. I left to work for the day.

That evening when I returned, I saw a tall man wearing a Scotch hat<sup>1</sup> waiting outside Holmes' house. We entered together.

'Mr Henry Baker, I believe,' said Holmes when he saw us. 'Please sit by the fire and get warm. Ah, Watson, you have come at the right time. Is that your hat, Mr Baker?'

'Yes, sir, that is certainly my hat.'

'We have kept your things,' said Holmes, 'but we had to eat the goose.'

'You ate it!' said our visitor with excitement.

'Yes, it was going to go bad, but I bought you another goose. It is over there, and I think it is just as good.'

'Oh, certainly, certainly!' answered Mr Baker with relief.<sup>2</sup>

'Oh course,' said Holmes, 'we have the feathers, legs and stomach of your bird if you want them.'

The man laughed loudly. 'Perhaps I could keep them to remember my adventure, but, no, I don't need them. Thank you, but I will take this goose and go.'

‘There is your hat, then, and there is your bird,’ said Holmes. ‘By the way,<sup>1</sup> could you tell me where you got your goose from? It was a splendid<sup>2</sup> bird, and I would like to get another one like it.’

‘Certainly, sir,’ said Mr Baker, ‘I got it at the Alpha Inn<sup>3</sup> near the Museum. You see, the owner of the inn, Mr Windigate, started a goose-club. Each week we gave him a few pence, and then at Christmas we received a goose.’

‘So much for Mr Henry Baker,’ said Holmes when Baker had gone.

We decided to go immediately to the Alpha Inn to investigate the goose. At the Alpha Inn we discovered that the goose had come from a salesman called Mr Breckinridge in Covent Garden. So, once again, Holmes and I put on our coats and walked to Covent Garden to talk to Mr Breckinridge.

‘Remember,’ said Holmes as we walked to Covent Garden, ‘at one end of this chain of events we have a simple goose, but at the other end of the chain there is a man who will go to prison for seven years if we cannot show that he is innocent.'

We soon found Mr Breckinridge's stall, and Holmes asked him about his geese. I was surprised when Mr Breckinridge replied angrily to Holmes' questions.

'I have had enough. I am tired of people asking me "Where are the geese?" and "Who did you sell the geese to?" and "How much money do you want for the geese?" Enough!'

With a little bit of difficulty, Holmes finally got the information we needed: the geese had come from Mrs Oakshott, 117 Brixton Road. We were walking away when we heard shouting from Mr Breckinridge's stall. We turned round and saw a little man in front of the stall.

'I've had enough of you and your geese! If you come here again, my dog will attack you!' shouted Mr Breckinridge at the little man.

The little man started walking away, and Holmes and I went after him. Holmes put his hand on the man's shoulder. The little man turned around and looked frightened. He said, 'Who are you? What do you want?'

'Excuse me,' said Holmes, 'but I heard you talking to the goose salesman, and I think I can help you.'

'You? Who are you? How could you know anything about the matter?'<sup>1</sup>

'My name is Sherlock Holmes. It is my business<sup>2</sup> to know what other people don't know.'

'But do you know anything about this?'

'Excuse me, I know everything about this. You are trying to find some geese which were sold by Mrs Oakshott, of Brixton Road, to a salesman called Breckinridge, who then sold them to Mr Windigate of the Alpha Inn, who then gave one of them to a member of his goose-club called Mr Henry Baker.'

'You are the man I wanted to meet,' said the little man, whose name, as we then discovered was John Ryder. Yes, John Ryder, the man who had called the police to report the stolen blue carbuncle. We then returned to Holmes' house to discuss the matter in front of a warm fire.

'Here we are!' said Holmes happily, as we entered his room. 'Now do you want to know what happened to those geese?'

'Yes, sir,' replied Ryder.

'But you really want to know what happened to that goose – the white one with a black bar across its tail.'

Our visitor stood up and then almost fell down. Holmes took out the blue carbuncle, and Ryder stared at it. He did not know if he should say it was his or not.

‘The game is up,’<sup>3</sup> Ryder. I know almost exactly what happened. Because you worked at the Hotel Cosmopolitan you knew that the Countess of Morcar had the blue carbuncle in her room.’

‘It was the Countess’ maid, Catherine Cusack, who told me about it.’

Ryder threw himself onto the rug<sup>1</sup> and held onto Holmes' knees, 'For God's sake have mercy!<sup>2</sup> Think of my father! Think of mother! It would break their hearts.'

'Get back into your chair!' said

Holmes sternly.<sup>3</sup> 'It is easy to say that now, but you did not think of this poor Horner before.'

'I will go away, Mr Holmes, and without my testimony<sup>4</sup> Horner will be free.'

'Hum! We will talk about that next,' said Holmes. 'And now tell us how the blue carbuncle came into the goose, and how the goose came into the open market. Tell us the truth because that is your only chance not to go to prison.'

‘I will tell you exactly what happened. After I had the blue carbuncle I was terrified. I did not know where to go. I thought I saw the police everywhere. Finally I decided to go to my sister’s. My sister married a man called Oakshott and lives on Brixton Road, where she fattens <sup>1</sup> geese for the market. When I arrived she asked me what was wrong. I told her that I was upset about the robbery at the hotel.

‘I then went out into the backyard<sup>2</sup> where the geese are, and smoked a pipe. I had a friend called Maudsley who had been in prison. He had told me how thieves<sup>3</sup> sold stolen property,<sup>4</sup> so I decided to go to him with the blue carbuncle. However, I did not know how I could carry the blue carbuncle to his house. Then I had the idea to force one of the geese to swallow<sup>5</sup> the stone. My sister had told me that I could have one of the geese for Christmas. So I caught one of the geese – a big white one with a barred tail,<sup>6</sup> and forced open its beak and pushed the stone in with my finger. The goose then swallowed the ‘Unfortunately, while I was talking to my sister the goose escaped and went in the middle of the flock<sup>1</sup> with the other geese. I caught it again, killed it and took it to my friend Maudsley. I told him the story. We then cut open the goose, but we could not find the stone! I ran back to my sister, and asked her if there were any other white geese with barred tails. She said that there were two other ones, but she had sold them to the dealer<sup>2</sup> called Breckinridge of Covent Garden.

‘I went to him, and he told me that he had sold them all. You heard him tonight. Now I will be considered a thief, and I have not even touched the blue carbuncle. God help me!’

There was a moment of silence, and then Holmes got up and opened the door.

‘Get out!’<sup>3</sup> shouted Holmes.

And there were no more words. Ryder ran out of the room and out of the house.

Go back to the text

1 Read the sentences below. For each question put a tick (✓) in the correct box.

1 Why did Peterson come to see Holmes?

- A ☐ Because he had lost his Christmas goose.
- B ☐ Because his goose had died.
- C ☐ Because the goose had come to life again and flown out of the window.
- D ☐ Because he had found a precious stone in the stomach of the goose.

2 How did Peterson know that it was a precious stone?

- A ☐ Because it was shiny.
- B ☐ Because it cut glass like butter.
- C ☐ Because Peterson had read about it in the newspaper.
- D ☐ Because Holmes told him that it was a precious stone.

3 Who is James Ryder?

- A ☐ He is the servant of the Countess of Morcar.
- B ☐ He is the hotel attendant who sent John Horner up to the Countess' room to repair a grate.
- C ☐ He is a friend of the Countess of Morcar.
- D ☐ He is a commissionaire, a friend of Sherlock Holmes.

4 Who is John Horner?

- A ☐ He is a hotel attendant.
- B ☐ He is the man who was sent to repair the grate in the Countess' room, and who was later accused of having stolen the blue carbuncle.
- C ☐ He is the Countess' servant.
- D ☐ He is a friend of James Ryder.

- 5 How does Holmes deduce that Mr Henry Baker had no part in the theft of the blue carbuncle?
- A ☐ Because he came to get his hat back.
  - B ☐ Because he dropped the goose and ran away from Peterson.
  - C ☐ Because he was only interested in having another goose and he did not want the stomach of the first goose, where the blue carbuncle was.
  - D ☐ Because he got the goose from the goose-club, and Mr Windigate did not work at the hotel.
- 6 How did Holmes know that Ryder had stolen the blue carbuncle?
- A ☐ Because the goose salesman at Covent Garden told him.
  - B ☐ Because Ryder was looking for the goose, so he must have known that the blue carbuncle was inside it.
  - C ☐ Because Ryder had called the police to the report the stolen blue carbuncle.
  - D ☐ Because Henry Baker had not stolen it, so Ryder must have stolen it.
- 7 Why did Ryder force the goose to swallow the blue carbuncle?
- A ☐ Because he needed a safe way of carrying the blue carbuncle to his friend Maudsley.
  - B ☐ Because the goose was too thin.
  - C ☐ Because he was afraid that his sister would find it.
  - D ☐ Because he wanted to surprise Henry Baker.
- 8 How did Breckinridge get the goose with the blue carbuncle?
- A ☐ The goose escaped from Ryder and then he caught the wrong goose. The goose with the blue carbuncle was then sold by Ryder's sister to Mr Breckinridge.
  - B ☐ The goose flew to Covent Garden and Mr Breckinridge caught it there.
  - C ☐ Maudsley sold it to Mr Breckinridge by mistake.
  - D ☐ Mr Breckinridge went to Ryder's sister and asked her for the goose.

The whole chain of events

2 Number the following sentences in the right order so as to show how the blue carbuncle arrived into Sherlock Holmes' hands.

- a. ☐ Mrs Oakshott, James Ryder's sister, sells the goose to Mr Breckinridge.
- b. ☐ Mr Peterson takes the goose home, and gives it to his wife who cuts it open to find, to her great surprise, the blue carbuncle!
- c. ☐ James Ryder takes the blue carbuncle to his sister's house and forces a goose to swallow it, but the goose escapes!
- d. ☐ While returning home with his goose, Mr Henry Baker is attacked by some men and he drops the goose and his hat, which are found by Mr Peterson.
- e. ☐ Mr Windigate of the Alpha Inn buys the goose from Mr Breckinridge for his Christmas goose-club.
- f. ☐ Mr Windigate of the Alpha Inn gives the goose to a member of his goose-club, Mr Henry Baker.
- g. ☐ Mr Peterson takes the goose and the hat to his friend Mr Sherlock Holmes – Holmes keeps the hat, but he gives the goose to Mr Peterson for his dinner.
- h. ☐ James Ryder, with the help of the Countess' maid, steals the blue carbuncle.
- i. ☐ Mr Peterson takes the blue carbuncle back to Holmes, who then begins his investigation of this incredible chain of events.
- j. ☐ The Countess of Morcar brings the blue carbuncle with her to the Hotel Cosmopolitan.

Conan Doyle Defends the Crew of the Titanic

Almost everybody knows about the Titanic, the luxury liner<sup>1</sup> which sank in the Atlantic Ocean on 15 April 1912. It has become a symbol of human arrogance<sup>2</sup> and presumption.<sup>3</sup> The Titanic left the English port of Southampton on Wednesday 10 April at full speed. It continued to travel at full speed even when it received four telegraph<sup>4</sup> messages saying that there were icebergs<sup>5</sup> in the area. The captain of the Titanic was certain that his look-outs<sup>6</sup> would see the icebergs in time. In fact, at 11:40 p.m. on 14 April the look-outs

  2. arrogance : 傲慢。
  3. presumption : 放肆。

  5. icebergs : 冰山。
  6. look-outs : 瞭望员。

Captain Smith.

telephoned the bridge<sup>1</sup> and said, 'Iceberg right ahead!' <sup>2</sup> The captain then gave orders to change the course<sup>3</sup> of the ship, but he was not in time.

The Titanic hit the iceberg on the starboard side,<sup>4</sup> and the collision<sup>5</sup> caused a 300-foot cut in its hull.<sup>6</sup>

At about midnight the captain knew that the boat was going to sink, and ordered the crew to begin preparing the lifeboats.<sup>7</sup> Unfortunately, not all of the crew knew which lifeboats were theirs or which passengers had to get on their lifeboats. This caused a lot of confusion.

Finally, at 12:30 a.m. the Captain gave the orders for the women and children to be put on the lifeboats, but many of them did not go: many did not realise that the Titanic was about to sink; others thought that another ship, the Carpathia was nearby; and others did not want to leave their husbands. Therefore, many lifeboats left half full, and even though the sea was calm, very few of the lifeboats returned to help the passengers in the water after the Titanic had sunk.

At 2:30 a.m. Captain Smith and his officers went down with the ship.<sup>1</sup> Of the 2,200 passengers on board only about 700 survived.

The newspapers of the day wrote about the sinking of the 'unsinkable'<sup>2</sup> Titanic in great detail. But according to the playwright<sup>3</sup> George Bernard Shaw the journalists<sup>4</sup> did not write the truth. They wrote romantic lies. Arthur Conan Doyle, however, considered Shaw's attack on the journalists of the day as an attack on the crew of the Titanic itself and on the honour of Britain.

They both wrote a series of long letters to the newspapers.

The tragic news was spread quickly.

1. went down with the ship : 船沉的时候，他们仍留在船上。
2. unsinkable : 不可能沉没的。
3. playwright : 剧作家。
4. journalists : 新闻工作者。

Arthur wrote in one of his letters that the band on ship played the religious song 'Nearer to God' to keep the passengers calm. George responded that witnesses<sup>1</sup> reported that the band played happy, quick songs so that the passengers – especially the third-class passengers – did not realise that the Titanic was sinking until the lifeboats had gone.

Conan Doyle said that Captain Smith, the captain of the Titanic was an honoured sailor who made one 'terrible mistake' and then tried to help save as many people as he could. Shaw replied that Captain Smith 'made no mistake. He knew perfectly well that icebergs are the only risk that is considered really deadly<sup>2</sup> in his line of work,<sup>3</sup> and knowing it, he chanced it<sup>4</sup> and lost the hazard.'<sup>5</sup>

Arthur thought it was terrible that Shaw criticised<sup>6</sup> the officers of the Titanic because they had done their duty very well. Shaw says that the officers in lifeboats refused to rescue the people who were in the water after the ship sank because they were afraid.

Arthur Conan Doyle concluded his last letter about the Titanic by saying that George Bernard Shaw did not have the humanity<sup>7</sup>

Dear Mary,

- 3 Fill in the chart below.

What Arthur Conan Doyle thought	What George Bernard Shaw thought
The newspapers wrote good things about the crew of the Titanic .
	The band on the ship played happy songs so that the poorer, third-class passengers would not know the ship was sinking, and therefore they would not try to get on the lifeboats reserved for the rich first-class passengers.
	Captain Smith knew that there were icebergs in the area, but he took a chance and lost. Because of this many people died.
The crew of the Titanic did their duty well. You should not hurt other people's feelings for no reason.

‘But I do not believe it,’ I answered. ‘The stories in the newspapers are never very interesting. In fact, they are always very boring.’

‘That is because,’ said Holmes, ‘newspapers always repeat the official reports of magistrates<sup>1</sup> and police reports. You can be certain that there is nothing as unnatural<sup>2</sup> and strange as the commonplace.’

‘I know,’ I replied, ‘that your cases are always very interesting, but let us look at today’s newspaper.’

I picked up the newspaper and began to read an article. It was about a husband who was cruel to his wife.

‘I don’t have to read the article,’ I said, ‘but I am sure that the man had a girlfriend, that he drank<sup>3</sup> and that he began to hit his wife. I am also sure that there was a sympathetic<sup>4</sup> sister or landlady.’<sup>5</sup>

‘You have chosen a bad example, Watson,’ said Holmes, ‘because I have worked on this case. The man, Mr Dundas, did not have a girlfriend and he did not drink and he did not hit her. Instead, at the end of every meal he took out his false teeth and threw them at his wife. You must admit that nobody could invent such a story!

‘Do you have any interesting cases now?’ I asked.

‘Well, I am working on ten or twelve cases, but none of them are interesting. They are important, you understand, without being interesting. I have found that unimportant matters are usually more interesting. If there is a big crime, the motive<sup>1</sup> is generally obvious. So, they are generally not very interesting. But I think I will have an interesting case in a few minutes.’

Holmes was standing at the window and looking down at the dull,<sup>2</sup> grey London streets. There was a woman standing in the street. She was moving her hands nervously.<sup>3</sup> It was obvious that she could not make up her mind.<sup>4</sup> Then suddenly she ran across the road and rang Holmes’ doorbell.

'I know those symptoms,' said Holmes. 'When a woman hesitates like that on the pavement, it means that she has a love problem. She wants help, but she thinks that her problem is too delicate<sup>1</sup> to communicate. But when a woman does not hesitate and rings the doorbell hard, it means she was seriously<sup>2</sup> wronged.<sup>3</sup> In this case, this woman is confused and perplexed,<sup>4</sup> and wants an explanation.'

As Holmes was speaking, the servant announced Miss Mary Sutherland. She was a large woman. She wore a hat with a red feather, a black jacket, a dark brown dress and grey gloves.

She also wore small, round gold earrings.

When Holmes saw her he said, 'Isn't it difficult for you to type<sup>5</sup> with such bad eyesight.'<sup>6</sup>

‘How do you know that?’ asked Miss Sutherland.

‘It is my business to know things,’ said Holmes laughing. ‘If I could not see these things, why would people come to me? In any case, I can see the marks of the glasses on your nose.’

‘I have come here,’ she said, ‘because I want to know where Mr Hosmer Angel has gone.’

‘Why did you come here in such a hurry?’ asked Holmes.

Once again Miss Sutherland looked very surprised. Holmes then explained that her boots were not the same and that they were not completely buttoned.

‘Yes, I did hurry out of the house because I was angry at Mr Windibank, that is, my father. He did not want to ask the police about Mr Angel. He said that nothing bad had happened. This made me angry so I came here to see you.’

‘Your father?’ said Holmes. ‘He must be your stepfather<sup>2</sup> because his surname is different from yours.’

‘Yes, my stepfather. I call him father, even though that seems strange to me. You see, he is only five years older than me.'

'And is your mother alive?' asked Holmes.

'Oh, yes, mother is alive and well,' answered Miss Sutherland, 'but I was not happy when she married Mr Windibank so soon<sup>1</sup> after father died. Also, Mr Windibank is fifteen years younger than mother. Father was a plumber and had a good business, and when he died mother continued the business. But when she married Mr Windibank, he made her sell it.'

'Do you live on the money from the business?' asked Holmes.

'Oh no,' replied Miss Sutherland, 'I inherited some money from my uncle. I cannot touch it, but with the interest I receive one hundred pounds a year.'

'That should be enough for you to live quite comfortably,' said Holmes.

'I give that money to mother, and I live on the money I make typing,' she replied.

'Now, can you tell us about Mr Hosmer Angel?' asked Holmes.

Miss Sutherland blushed <sup>1</sup> deeply <sup>2</sup> and said, 'I met him at the plumbers' ball. <sup>3</sup> They used to send tickets to my father when he was alive, and after he died they sent them to my mother. But Mr Windibank didn't want us to go. He said that my father's friends were not good enough for us. But the day of the ball, Mr Windibank went to France on business, so mother and I went to the ball, and it was there I met Mr Angel.'

'I suppose,' said Holmes, 'that Mr Windibank was very angry with you when he discovered that you had gone to the ball.'

'No, not very,' replied Miss Sutherland, 'he said that it was impossible to stop a woman when she really wanted something.'

'And did you see Mr Hosmer after the ball?' asked Holmes.

‘Were you engaged to the gentleman at this time?’ asked Holmes.

‘Oh yes, Mr Holmes. We were engaged after the first walk that we took. Mr Angel worked in an office in Leadenhall Street.’

‘Which office?’

‘That’s the worst part. I don’t know.’

‘Then where did you send your letters?’

‘To the Leadenhall Street Post Office where he got them. He said to me, “The other workers in my office will make fun of me,<sup>2</sup> if they see my letters.”’

‘I told him that I could type my letters, like he did his. But he said, “A typed letter comes from an impersonal<sup>3</sup> machine and not from you.” This shows how fond<sup>4</sup> he was of me, Mr Holmes, and the nice little things he thought of.’

that the little things are infinitely the most important. Can you remember any other little things about Mr Hosmer Angel?’

‘He was a very shy man, Mr Holmes. He always wanted to walk with me in the evening instead of during the day. He was very gentlemanly.<sup>1</sup> Even his voice was gentle.

He told me that he had had a bad infection<sup>2</sup> of the tonsils<sup>3</sup> when he was a child, so he had to whisper.

He always wore elegant clothes.

His eyes were weak, just like mine, and he wore dark glasses against the sun.’

‘Well, what happened when Mr Windibank returned to France?’ asked Holmes.

‘Mr Angel came to my house and said that we should get married before father returned. He was very serious and said, “Put your hand on the Bible and promise me that you will always love me.” Mother agreed with him. 'It missed<sup>3</sup> him then?'

'Yes, sir, he had started back to England just before the letter arrived in France.'

'Ha! That was unfortunate. Your wedding was planned then for the Friday of that week. Was it to be in church?'

'Yes, sir, but very quietly. On the day of the wedding Hosmer came in a hansom<sup>4</sup> to take mother and me to the church. But since there were two of us, mother and I went in the hansom, and Hosmer took a cab.<sup>5</sup> We got to the church first, and when the cab arrived, we waited for him to come out, but he never did. The cabman said that he could not understand what had happened to him.'

'I think that you have been very badly treated,' said Holmes.

'Yes, I think so.'

'But do you know what the danger was?'

'No, I don't.'

'One more question. How did your mother react?'

'She was angry and told me that I should never speak about him again.'

'And your father? Did you tell him?'

'Yes, he said, "Something terrible has happened to Hosmer, but he will return." I agree with my father. Why would Hosmer leave me? After all, there was no money involved.<sup>2</sup> Hosmer did not borrow money from me, and I never put the money which I had inherited in his name. So he did not take my money and leave.'

A year ago, a man from Portsmouth lost his wallet. He had left it in a phone booth. Last week, a man sent this letter and the wallet to the office of a local newspaper:

'I thought about it for a long time. I am sorry that I took the wallet.'

Inside the wallet, along with the original contents, the thief had added 45 pounds!

b. THE YOUNG ADVENTURER

After school a 12-year-old boy went to the airport and got on an aeroplane. Nobody stopped him. Nobody asked him for a ticket. He sat down in the first-class section. The boy was discovered during the flight to Jamaica. The boy's mother said, 'I don't think my son understands what he did. He thinks that it was fun!'

c. THE BAD HUSBAND WAS A BAD MURDERER

In Buenos Aires, Argentina, a man wanted to kill his wife. They lived on the eighth floor of a building. The man threw his wife out of the window, but she did not fall to the ground because she got tangled <sup>1</sup> in some electric wires. The man saw that his wife was stuck in the wires so he decided to jump on her to kill her. Unfortunately for him, he missed his wife and fell to the ground and was killed. 'Certainly,' said Holmes, walking over to the door and locking it. 'I let you know that I have caught him.'

'What! Where?' shouted Mr Windibank becoming white, and looking around like a rat in a trap.

'You can't get away, Mr Windibank,' said Holmes. 'This case was really very easy. Now sit down and we can talk about it.'

Mr Windibank fell back into the chair. 'I did not do anything illegal,' he stammered. <sup>1</sup>

'I am afraid that you are right. But, Mr Windibank, it was a cruel, selfish <sup>2</sup> and heartless <sup>3</sup> trick. Now, let us look at what happened,' said Holmes.

Then Holmes sat down and began to talk.

'The man <sup>4</sup> marries a woman older than himself for her money. He can also use the money of the daughter as long as <sup>5</sup> the daughter lives with him and the mother. The daughter has a lot of money so it is important not to lose it. But the daughter is friendly and affectionate, <sup>6</sup> so it is clear that she will soon find a husband. At first this man tells the daughter that she cannot go out, but this will not solve the problem forever. Then one day the daughter says that she wants to go to a ball. What does the clever stepfather do then? With the help of the wife, he disguises himself.<sup>1</sup> He wears dark glasses, and puts on a fake<sup>2</sup> moustache. Then he changes his voice and speaks very softly. He is even more certain that his plan will work because the girl is short-sighted.<sup>3</sup> Then at the ball this man keeps away<sup>4</sup> other lovers by becoming the girl's lover himself.'

'It was just a joke at first,' groaned<sup>5</sup> Mr Windibank. 'We didn't think that the girl would fall in love.'

'Yes, that is probably true,' continued Holmes. 'But the girl really fell in love, and you decided to take the situation to the extreme.<sup>6</sup> You began to see her often, and the mother said that she liked him very much. about other men. But it was difficult for you to pretend<sup>1</sup> to go to France every time Miss Sutherland had to see Mr Angel. You had to end the situation dramatically.<sup>2</sup> In some way, you had to keep Miss Sutherland from thinking about other men in the future. Therefore, you made her promise on the Bible, and you told her that something could happen on the very morning of the wedding. You took her to the church, but obviously you could not marry her. You disappeared by using the old trick<sup>3</sup> of entering one door of a cab and walking out the other. I think this is the chain of events, Mr Windibank!

‘Yes, maybe that is true,’ replied Mr Windibank, ‘but I did not do anything illegal, and now you are breaking the law because you will not let me leave this room.’

‘You are right. You did not do anything illegal,’ said Holmes as he unlocked and opened the door, ‘but you really deserve to be punished, and I would like to do it.’

‘Now, he certainly is a cold-blooded scoundrel!’ said Holmes laughing. ‘That fellow will continue doing worse and worse crimes until he does something really bad and finishes on the gallows.<sup>1</sup> In any case,<sup>2</sup> this case had some interesting points.’

‘I cannot completely follow your reasoning<sup>3</sup> in this case,’ I said.

‘Well, it was clear from the first, that Mr Hosmer Angel had a very good reason for his actions, and that the only man who could really profit from the situation was the stepfather: he wanted to keep the hundred pounds a year. Then it was very suggestive that Mr Windibank and Mr Hosmer Angel were never together, and so were the dark glasses, the soft voice and the moustache; they all suggested a disguise. The final point was the typed signature. This made me think that the handwriting of the man must be very familiar to Miss Sutherland, and that if she saw even a small portion<sup>4</sup> of it, she would recognise it.’

‘And how did you verify<sup>5</sup> these ideas?’ I asked.

described Mr Angel after I had eliminated everything that could be a disguise, like the glasses, the moustache and the voice, and I asked them if they had an employee like that. They wrote back to me and said that I had described Mr James Windibank. Then I wrote to Mr Windibank to invite him here, and as I expected he typed his reply to me. Then I compared his letter with the letters of Mr Angel. Voilà tout!'<sup>1</sup>

‘And Miss Sutherland?’ I asked.

‘If I tell her, she will not believe me,’ replied Holmes. ‘Maybe you remember this Persian saying, “It is dangerous to take a tiger cub<sup>2</sup> from its mother, and it is dangerous to take a delusion<sup>3</sup> from a woman.”’

Conan Doyle and the case of the missing cousin

- 4 Because Conan Doyle was very famous as the creator of Sherlock Holmes, people often wrote to him for help. In 1907, a Scottish woman wrote and asked him to find her missing cousin.

Dear Mr Doyle,

I need your help. My cousin disappeared a week ago. I think something terrible has happened to him. Maybe he was kidnapped!

He went to London, and he stayed in a big hotel. The evening he disappeared, he went to a music-hall show. He returned to the hotel about ten o'clock. But nobody saw him after that. The man who was staying in the next room said, 'I heard noises in his room during the night'.

Please help me!

Arthur said, 'I tried to see the problem through the eyes of Mr Holmes.' Arthur telephoned the bank of the missing cousin. The missing cousin had taken all of his money from the bank before he came to London – £40.

After an hour, Arthur sent the woman a message:

Your cousin is in Scotland. Look for him in Glasgow or Edinburgh.

How did Arthur know this? ...

Here is how Arthur reasoned, but you must put his conclusions on page 109 in the right places!

The missing cousin wanted to disappear because he had taken out all his money before he disappeared.

- a. 6 Therefore, he was not kidnapped.

The man in the next room was wrong. There are many noises in a big hotel.

b. ☐ Therefore, .....

The missing cousin left during the night. But there is a night porter in all hotels. It is impossible to leave a hotel without the night porter seeing you after the door is shut. The door is shut at twelve midnight.

c. ☐ Therefore, .....

The missing cousin left with his bag. No one noticed him leaving.

d. ☐ Therefore, .....

The missing cousin wanted to hide, but he did not want to hide in London. If he had wanted to hide in London, he would not have left the hotel.

e. ☐ Therefore, .....

If the missing cousin took a train to a small town, people would notice him.

f. ☐ Therefore, .....

I looked at the train timetables and discovered that the only trains going to big cities were the trains going to Edinburgh and Glasgow.

g. ☐ Therefore, .....

The conclusions:

1. It is probable that he left when many of the hotel guests were returning after the theatre at around eleven or eleven-thirty. This is when most shows end. After eleven-thirty very few people return to the hotel, and the missing cousin would have been noticed with his bag.
2. He would go to a big city, where most people get off the train and he would not be noticed or observed.
3. I am sure that he went to Edinburgh or Glasgow.
4. The missing cousin left before twelve midnight.
5. He wanted to catch a train to go to some other place.
6. He was not kidnapped.
7. He probably heard noises from another room, and not noises from the missing cousin's room.

5 Topic – Transport

Find a picture of a means of transport. Think about the following questions:

- a. Have you ever travelled by this means of transport?
- b. How do you prefer to travel?
- c. How did people travel in the past and how will they travel in the future?

Arthur Defends the Underdog<sup>1</sup>

In Arthur Conan Doyle's books, his heroes<sup>2</sup> always defend the underdog. You can see three examples in the stories in this book. Sherlock Holmes was a sort of modern knight, and the poor and the weak knew that he would help them. But Arthur did not only write about defending the underdog, he did it in real life.

One of Conan Doyle's battles was in favour of the Africans of the Congo, present-day Zaire. In 1885 King Leopold II said that all 'vacant' land<sup>3</sup> in the Congo was his. 'Vacant' meant that no Europeans lived there. Of course, there were many Africans who lived there, but for King Leopold these people did not have any importance. The only thing of importance was rubber,<sup>4</sup> especially for the new automobile<sup>5</sup> industry. Rubber, at this time,<sup>6</sup> came from the trees of the African jungle,<sup>7</sup> and it was very important then for industry. The Belgians forced the Africans to collect rubber. Often, if the Africans did not collect enough rubber, the Belgians cut off one of their hands. Sometimes, the Belgians kidnapped all the women and children of an African village. The men of the village could not have their families back until they brought the Belgians a certain amount of rubber. A British diplomat,<sup>1</sup> Roger Casement began to protest<sup>2</sup> against the treatment of the Africans. Arthur joined Casement's protest, and in 1909 wrote a book, The Crime of the Congo. Conan Doyle also travelled around Britain and spoke about the crimes of the Congo. He also wrote letters to important people like the President of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt.

A map of the Congo Free State in 1890.

1. diplomat : 外交官。
2. protest : 抗议。

Later, after World War One, in 1918, Roger Casement was convicted<sup>1</sup> of treason because of his fight for Irish Independence. Even though Conan Doyle was not for Irish independence, he fought for Casement not to be hanged. Casement was hanged anyway.

George Edalji.

The Richard Lancelyn Green Collection.

Another of Conan Doyle's famous battles for the underdog involved a young solicitor<sup>2</sup> called George Edalji. George's father was Indian and his mother was English. George's father was a vicar<sup>3</sup> in a small English town, and he began to receive anonymous<sup>4</sup> threatening letters. At the same time, a lot of horses were attacked and physically injured. The police accused George of both the anonymous letters and the horsemaiming.<sup>5</sup> He was condemned<sup>6</sup> to seven years of penal servitude.<sup>7</sup> Once in prison, George wrote an article defending himself in a magazine. Arthur read this article and believed what George wrote.

4. anonymous : 匿名的。

5. horse-maiming : 残害马匹。在英国农村, 这是一项严重犯罪。

6. condemned : 被判处刑罚。

7. penal servitude : 劳役。

Arthur began to investigate the anonymous letters and the horse-maiming. He discovered that George was a very hard-working, calm young man, who never drank <sup>1</sup> and who was never cruel. He also discovered that George had very bad eyesight. In fact, George could not see anything that was more than six metres away. This was an important fact because the horse-maiming was committed at night, and the criminal had to cross many railway lines and go around many obstacles <sup>2</sup> in the dark. This was almost impossible for George.

After learning these things, Arthur wrote many newspaper articles defending George. Finally, the Government looked at George's situation again. They decided that he was not guilty of <sup>3</sup> the horse-maiming, but that he was still guilty of writing the anonymous letters. So, after three years, George left prison, but he received no monetary compensation <sup>4</sup> for his time in prison because of the letter writing.

Arthur then found the person who had done the horse-maiming and written the letters. The criminal had told someone that he had done some horse-maiming, that he was an expert butcher <sup>5</sup> and that he had written anonymous letters. In addition, the criminal's handwriting was the same as the handwriting of the letters which George's father had received. Finally, the horse-maiming continued when George was in prison, but it stopped when the criminal himself was away from the area. With this evidence,<sup>1</sup> Arthur was sure that the Government would say that George was not guilty of writing the anonymous letters. But the Government did nothing, even with the best evidence possible. So, George received no money for his time spent in prison as an innocent man. Sherlock Holmes would not have been very happy in the real world.

2. obstacles : 障碍。

3. was not guilty of : 没有犯 (某项罪)。

'Well,' explained Holmes, 'I think this pipe costs around seven-and-sixpence. Now, look it has been mended <sup>2</sup> twice with silver bands that probably cost more than the pipe itself. So, this man must like his pipe very much if he prefers to mend it instead of buying a new one with the same money.'

Just then, as Holmes was talking, we heard someone walking up the stairs, and then a man walked into the room without knocking.

'I beg your pardon,' said the man, 'I should have knocked, but I am very upset, <sup>3</sup> and I need help.'

The man then took off his hat, and sat down on a chair.

'My dear Mr Grant Munro...' began Holmes.

'The facts are these, Mr Holmes,' he said. 'I have been married for three years, and my wife and I were very happy until last Monday. Suddenly a barrier<sup>3</sup> appeared between us, and she has become like a stranger to me. I want to know why. But, Mr Holmes, I am sure that my wife loves me.'

'Please let me have the facts, Mr Munro,' said Holmes, with some impatience.

'Effie, my wife was a young widow,<sup>4</sup> only twenty-five years old, when I met her. Her name then was Mrs Hebron. epidemic<sup>1</sup> there, and both her husband and child died of it. I have seen his death certificate. After this tragedy, she decided to leave America, and come back to England to live with her aunt.

‘I should also mention that her husband left her a large amount of money. This money was invested,<sup>2</sup> and she can live very well with the income<sup>3</sup> from it. She met me after six months in England. We fell in love with each other, and we married a few weeks afterwards.

‘I am a hop<sup>4</sup> merchant, and I, too, have a good income. We rented a nice house in the country near Norbury. There is an inn and two houses near our house, and a single cottage across the field in front of our house. Until this recent incident my wife and I lived very happily there.

‘There is one more thing I should tell you. When we married, my wife put all her money in my name. I did not think this was a good idea, but she insisted. Well, about six weeks ago she came and asked me for some.

‘I was not happy about this because this was the first time that there was a secret between us. I gave her the cheque,<sup>3</sup> and forgot about the matter. It may have nothing to do with what happened afterwards, but I thought that I should mention it.

‘Anyway, I told you that there is a cottage near our house. Well, I like walking past that cottage, and last Monday, as I walked past the cottage I saw an empty van<sup>4</sup> going away from the cottage, and furniture in front of the cottage. Someone was finally going to live there.

‘I was looking at the cottage, when suddenly I saw a face watching me from an upper window. There was something strange about the face, Mr Holmes, that frightened me. I was not very near, but there was something unnatural and inhuman<sup>1</sup> about the face. It was yellow and rigid.<sup>2</sup> I walked closer to the house, but the face suddenly disappeared.

‘Then I went to the door and knocked. A tall woman answered the door. I told her that I was her neighbour, and asked her if she needed any help.

‘“If we need any help, we’ll call you,” she said and shut the door in my face.

‘That night I did not tell my wife about the strange face and the rude woman, but I did tell her that people were now living in the cottage.

‘That same night something strange happened. In the middle of the night, when I was not completely asleep, I became aware<sup>3</sup> that my wife was dressed and was leaving the room. She looked very frightened and nervous. I waited for about twenty minutes, and then she returned.

‘The next day I had to go to the City, but I was so worried about my wife that I returned early to Norbury at about one o’clock. Walking home I went past the cottage. I stopped for a minute in front of it to look for that strange face. As I stood there, imagine my surprise, Mr Holmes, when the door suddenly opened and my wife walked out!

“Oh, Jack!” she said, “I came here to see if our new neighbours needed anything. Why are you looking at me like that? Are you angry with me?”

“So,” I said, “this is where you went during the night?”

“What do you mean?” she cried.

“You came here. I am sure of it. Who are these people?”

“I have not been here before.”

“I know you are not telling me the truth. I am going to enter the cottage and discover the truth!”

“Please, don’t go in, Jack,” she cried. “I promise that I will tell you everything some day, but if you enter now, you will

“I will trust you,” I said, “if you promise never to come here again.”

‘She was greatly relieved.<sup>3</sup> Then as we started to leave, I looked up and there was that yellow face watching us out of the upper window. What link<sup>4</sup> could there be between that creature and my wife?

‘After that everything went well, but one day I returned home early. I discovered that my wife had been to the cottage again, so I went to the cottage. After hearing this strange story, Holmes sat silent for a few minutes, thinking. Then he said, 'Are you sure that the yellow face was a man's face?'

THE QUOTES

- What for?
- Do you need any help?
- One hundred pounds.
- If you enter, our marriage is finished.
- She has become like a stranger to me.
- How much do you want?
- I will trust you.
- If we need any help, we'll call you.

Have you ever seen a photograph of her first husband?

- 3 Notice that we use the Present Perfect with ever and never in these cases:

I have never met him = In my entire life I have not met him.

Have you ever seen her? = In your entire life have you seen her?

Notice when you talk about habits and routine with the Present Simple you can also use never and ever, but the meaning is different.

Do you ever go to the cinema = Do you sometimes go to the cinema?

I never go to the cinema = I don't go to the cinema at all.

With the cues given below write questions using ever, and give true answers.

Then, for the questions with negative answers, write sentences using never.

Example: Mr Munro/see a photograph of his wife's first husband?

Has Mr Munro ever seen a photograph of his wife's first husband?

No, he hasn't

He has never seen a photograph of his wife's first husband.

PART II

When Mr Grant Munro left, and Holmes and I discussed the case.

‘I am afraid that this is a case of blackmail,’<sup>1</sup> said Holmes.

‘And who is the blackmailer?’<sup>2</sup> I asked.

‘Well, it must be that creature with the yellow face. Upon my word, Watson, there is something very attractive<sup>3</sup> about that yellow face at the window, and I would not miss this case for worlds.’<sup>4</sup>

‘Have you got a theory?’ I asked.

‘Yes,’ Holmes replied, ‘I think her first husband is in the cottage. This is what I think happened: This woman was married in America. Her husband got a terrible disease. That is why he has that horrible<sup>1</sup> yellow face. She ran away from him at last, and came back to England, where she changed her name and started a new life. After three years of marriage, she feels safe again, but her first husband, or some unscrupulous<sup>2</sup> woman attached to him, discovers where she lives. They write to her and tell her to send them a hundred pounds, or they will tell her new husband everything. When her husband tells her that someone is living in the cottage, she knows that they are her blackmailers. In the middle of the night, while her husband is sleeping, she decides to go to the cottage. That night she is not able to convince her blackmailers to leave her alone,<sup>3</sup> so she returns the next day. That was when her husband saw her coming out of the house. She then promises her husband that she will not return, but she wants to get rid of<sup>4</sup> her blackmailers. She decides to go again, and this time she brings a photograph, which they probably asked her for. Fortunately for her, her maid warns her that her husband is coming, and she and her blackmailers leave the house in time.

‘Now we can do nothing except wait for Mr Munro to call us, and then we will see if my theory is correct.’

We did not have to wait long.<sup>1</sup> After tea we received a message from Mr Munro saying, ‘There are people in the house.’

That night Holmes and I took a train to Norbury. Mr Munro was waiting for us at the station, and he took us to the cottage.

When we arrived there, Holmes asked Mr Munro if he was sure he wanted to enter the cottage. Mr Munro said he was sure and we went to the door of the cottage. As we approached the door, a woman suddenly appeared. It was Effie.

‘For God’s sake,<sup>2</sup> don’t Jack!’ she cried. ‘Trust me!’

‘I have trusted you too long, Effie!’ he cried sternly. ‘Let go of me! My friends and I are going to solve this mystery.’

We rushed up<sup>3</sup> the stairs to the lighted room. In one corner there was a desk, and at that desk there appeared to be a little girl. Her face was turned away from us when we entered the room, but we could see she was wearing a red dress and long white gloves. She turned around to us, and I gave a cry of surprise and horror. Her face was the strangest yellow colour and it had absolutely <sup>1</sup> no expression.<sup>2</sup>

A moment later the mystery was explained. Holmes, with a laugh, put his hand behind the ear of the little girl, and pulled off the mask, and there was a little coal-black <sup>3</sup> girl. She laughed, and I laughed too, but Grant Munro stood staring with his hand holding his throat.

‘My God!’ he cried, ‘what does this mean?’

‘I will tell you everything,’ cried his wife with a proud face.<sup>4</sup> ‘You have forced me, and now we must both accept the situation. My husband died at Atlanta. My child survived.’

‘Your child!’ cried Grant Munro.

She pulled out a locket,<sup>5</sup> and inside the locket was the picture of a very handsome and intelligent man, but a man who was obviously of African descent.

‘This is John Hebron, of Atlanta,’ said Mrs Munro, ‘and he was a very noble man. I cut myself off<sup>1</sup> from my race<sup>2</sup> to marry him, but I never regretted it<sup>3</sup> for a moment.

Unfortunately, our only child took after<sup>4</sup> his people rather than mine. She is very dark, but she is my dear little girl.’ When the little girl heard these words, she ran to her mother.

‘I left her in America with a trusted servant,’ Mrs Munro continued, ‘because she was not very healthy, but I never considered abandoning her. When I met you by chance and learned to love you, I was afraid to tell you about my child. I was afraid to lose you. I kept her existence a secret from you for three years, but finally I had to see my little girl. I sent the servant a hundred pounds, and told her to come to this cottage. I took every possible precaution<sup>1</sup> so that there would not be gossip<sup>2</sup> about a little black girl. That is why she wore that yellow mask.

‘You told me about her arrival in the cottage, and that night I had to see her, and that was the beginning of my troubles. And now, tonight, you know everything. What are you going to do about me and my child?’

Mr Grant Munro did not say anything for two minutes, and his answer was one of which I love to think. He lifted the little child, kissed her, and, with the little girl in his arms, he gave his other hand to his wife.

‘We can talk it over<sup>3</sup> more comfortably at home,’ he said. ‘I am not a very good man, Effie, but I think that I am better than you thought.’

We all left the cottage together, and then Holmes and I returned to London.

We did not say another word about the case until late that night at Holmes' house in Baker Street, just before Holmes went to bed.

'Watson,' he said, 'if you should ever think that I am becoming too confident<sup>1</sup> in my powers, or that I am not working hard enough on a particular case, please whisper "Norbury" in my ear, and I will be infinitely obliged<sup>2</sup> to you.'

Getting the facts straight

2 In this story there are different interpretations <sup>1</sup> of the facts. Holmes himself is wrong. Mr Munro doesn't understand what he sees, and Effie lies to maintain her secret.

Below are three different explanations of seven parts of the story.

Say which one is:

- a. The real explanation.
  - b. What Mr Munro has seen or what Effie first told him.
  - c. Sherlock Holmes' explanation.
1. .... The husband died of yellow fever but the child survived.
 .... After Effie's husband and child died, she returned to England to stay with an aunt.
 .... Effie fled from her husband because he had a terrible disease.

1. interpretations : 解释。

2. .... After three years of happy marriage, Effie wanted to see her daughter again.
 .... After three years of happy marriage, Effie has some secret.
 .... After three years of happy marriage Effie receives a blackmail letter from her first husband.
3. .... Mr Hebron's photograph was destroyed in a fire.
 .... The photograph was not destroyed in the fire. She does not want his picture because she hated him.
 .... She didn't want to show the photograph because Mr Hebron was of African descent.
4. .... The first husband tells her to send a hundred pounds, or they will tell Mr Munro everything.
 .... Effie sent the servant a hundred pounds to bring her daughter to England.
 .... Effie wanted the one hundred pounds for a dress.
5. .... Effie went out in the middle of the night because she wanted some fresh air.
 .... Effie went out in the middle of the night because she wanted to see her daughter.
 .... Effie went out in the middle of the night because she wanted to convince her blackmailers to leave her alone.
6. .... Effie's first husband is in the house.
 .... Effie had never seen the people in the cottage before.
 .... Effie's little girl is in the house.
7. .... Mr Munro is not sure the yellow face is a man's face.
 .... Effie's first husband has a horrible yellow face because he got a terrible disease.
 .... The little girl wore the mask so gossips would not talk about a little black girl.

The Countess of Morcar brought the blue carbuncle with her to the Hotel

Cosmopolitan. There, James Ryder, with the help of the Countess' maid, stole the blue carbuncle. Then James Ryder took the blue carbuncle to his sister's house and forced a goose to swallow it, but the goose escaped!
Mrs Oakshott, James Ryder's sister,
then sold the goose to Mr
Breckinridge, and then Mr
Windigate of the Alpha Inn bought the goose from Mr Breckinridge for his Christmas goose-club. Mr Windigate of the Alpha Inn then gave the goose to a member of his goose-club, Mr Henry Baker.
While returning home with his goose, Mr Henry Baker was attacked by Mr Peterson. Mr Peterson took the goose and the hat to his friend

Mr Sherlock Holmes – Holmes kept

Peterson for his dinner. So, Mr Peterson took the goose home, and the blue carbuncle back to Holmes, who then began his investigation of

What Arthur Conan Doyle thought:

The newspapers wrote good things about the crew of the Titanic.

The band played the religious song 'Nearer to God' to keep the passengers calm.

Captain Smith was an honoured sailor who made one 'terrible mistake'.

The crew of the Titanic did their duty well. You should not hurt other people's feelings for no reason.

What George Bernard Shaw thought:

The newspapers wrote 'romantic lies' about the Titanic.

The band on the ship played happy songs so that the poorer, third-class passengers would not know the ship was sinking, and therefore they would not try to get on the lifeboats reserved for the rich first-class passengers.

Captain Smith knew that there were icebergs in the area, but he took a chance and lost. Because of this many people died.

The crew of the Titanic were not all heroes, and, in any case, when there is a great tragedy like that of the Titanic people should speak the truth.

- a. So that he would not be legally responsible for what he did.
- b. So that Miss Sutherland would not recognise his signature.
- c. Because he did not want to lose the hundred pounds that Miss Sutherland gave to her mother every year.
- d. Mr Windibank.
- e. He wore false sideboards and moustache. He wore dark glasses and he changed his voice and spoke in a whisper.

- f. Because Mr Hosmer Angel, in truth Mr Windibank, could not keep going away every time Miss Sutherland and 'Mr Angel' saw each other. Also, Mr Windibank could not marry Miss Sutherland.
- g. He entered a cab through one door, and then immediately got out through the other.
- h. Because they both had the same defects on the same letters.
- i. First there are the physical defects of the characters. Mr Angel has a speech defect which makes Holmes think that he wants to disguise his voice. Miss Sutherland has a 'sight' defect which makes Holmes think that a disguise would be effective. Then there are the defects of the letters of the typewriter which permit Holmes to discover that the letters from Mr Hosmer Angel were typed with the same typewriter that Mr Windibank used to type letters in his office.

- a. Rubber.
- b. It was used in the new automobile industry.
- c. Sometimes the Belgians would cut off the hands of the people who did not collect enough rubber.
- d. He was a British diplomat who fought on behalf of the Africans of the Congo.
- e. He was accused of horse-maiming and of writing threatening anonymous letters.
- f. He was a calm, gentle, hard-working young man with bad eyesight who never drank.
- g. Arthur showed that the crime would have been difficult to commit for someone with bad eyesight. In addition, he showed that the horse-maiming continued when George was in prison, but stopped when Arthur's suspect was away. Finally, Arthur's suspect admitted to having done horse-maiming and his handwriting was the same as the handwriting in the threatening letters.
